SAVING A GENERATION

Carrying an overall hope-based theme, Freedom Besieged tells the inspiring stories of various Greek youth and community leaders who, without violence, seek a prosperous future amidst the crisis.

Freedom Besieged is a feature-length documentary concerning the economic and political climate of Greece and specifically how it has impacted the development and psychology of the nation’s youth. Treading fearlessly into what has been called a “humanitarian catastrophe,” the film explores the pursuits of Greek youth living within the country’s crisis.

Our award-winning production team has written, produced, and directed film and television series in North America, Europe, and Asia.

Some of our works have been screened at major festivals, including “Official Selection” status at the 2012 Festival de Cannes Court Métrage.

Yannis Diakoumakos builds and designs analogue synthesizers that have enjoyed global distribution for world-renowned musicians.

Apostolos Sianos abandoned a successful career in Athens to begin building a self-sustaining eco-village in the mountains of Evia.

Eirini Fanarioti is a young director and actress who refused to leave Greece for opportunities abroad and founded her own theatre company.

John Karkalatos is a modest farmer who self-funds and runs a basketball camp that, for the past two decades, instills fundamental values of teamwork and self-belief in Greek youth.
RECONNECTING GREEK YOUTH

In an effort to re-build a bridge of communication between Greek youth and the world around them, Freedom Besieged includes an unprecedented amount of engagement from respected intellectuals, politicians, experts and people from all walks of life.
